The following are the official eligibility and consideration rules established and maintained by Golden Globes, LLC (the “Golden Globes”) for the 82nd Golden Globe Awards. These rules may be revised or modified at any time and from time to time by the Golden Globes. Changes in these rules will be effective when posted to the Golden Globes website.

The Golden Globes reserves the right to interpret and implement these rules in its sole discretion. Any determinations made by the Golden Globes with respect to these rules or their interpretation and implementation (including, without limitation, any determinations regarding Golden Globe Award eligibility and consideration) shall be final.

A. MOTION PICTURES

Eligibility:

1. Feature-length motion pictures (70 minutes or longer) that have been both released and made available for viewing by all Golden Globe voters pursuant to these rules during the qualifying year (January 1 through December 31). Motion pictures made available to Golden Globe voters in a prior year but that were not deemed “released” during such year must be made available again to Golden Globe voters in the year of the motion picture’s release. For the 82nd Golden Globe Awards, the “qualifying year” shall be January 1 through December 31, 2024.

2. Motion pictures are considered “released” when they are made available for public exhibition in commercial motion picture theaters or on a recognized platform pay-per-view cable channel or pay-per-view digital delivery service (not subscription cable or digital delivery) in any of the greater Atlanta, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, New York City or San Francisco metropolitan areas for a minimum seven-day consecutive period beginning prior to 11:59pm local time on December 31 of the qualifying year. A motion picture exhibited at a film festival would not qualify as “released” unless it meets the criteria set forth above.

3. A motion picture must be eligible and entered for consideration in one of the Best Motion Picture award categories in order for such motion picture to be eligible for consideration in any of the other individual award categories set forth below (i.e., the individual Best Performance, Best Director, Best Screenplay, Best Original Score and Best Original Song award categories).

Categories:

- Best Motion Picture – Drama
- Best Motion Picture – Musical or Comedy
- Best Motion Picture – Animated
- Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language
- Best Performance by a Female Actor in a Motion Picture – Drama
- Best Performance by a Male Actor in a Motion Picture – Drama
- Best Performance by a Female Actor in a Motion Picture – Musical or Comedy
- Best Performance by a Male Actor in a Motion Picture – Musical or Comedy
- Best Performance by a Female Actor in a Supporting Role in any Motion Picture
- Best Performance by a Male Actor in a Supporting Role in any Motion Picture
- Best Director – Motion Picture
- Best Screenplay – Motion Picture
- Best Original Score – Motion Picture
- Best Original Song – Motion Picture

Category Criteria:

1. Motion Picture – Drama; Musical or Comedy:
   a. Motion pictures shall be entered in the category that best matches the overall tone and content of the motion picture. Therefore, a motion picture that is primarily intended to have a serious or dramatic tone but contains comedic overtones or elements should be entered as a drama as opposed to a comedy.
   b. A musical can be a comedy or a drama in which songs are used in addition to spoken dialogue to further the plot.

2. Motion Picture – Animated:
   a. For a motion picture to qualify as animated, the movement and characters’ performances in the motion picture must be created using a frame-by-frame technique. Each animated image must be created or manipulated by an animator through hand drawing, stop motion, pixilation, animation software or a similar technique. Motion capture by itself (without the manipulation frame-by-frame by an animator) is not an animation technique.

b. Motion pictures with less than 75% animation of the motion picture’s main characters do not qualify as animated motion pictures.

c. Animated motion pictures are also eligible for the Best Motion Picture – Drama, Best Motion Picture – Musical or Comedy, and Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language awards if they meet the eligibility criteria for each of those awards.

d. Animated motion pictures may qualify for the Best Motion Picture – Animated award regardless of their language.

e. If fewer than twelve animated motion pictures qualify in a year, the category will be limited to three nominations that year.

3. Motion Picture – Non-English Language:

a. For a motion picture to qualify as Non-English Language, more than 50% of the dialogue of such motion picture must be in a language other than English. The Golden Globe eligibility committee may request a continuity script to verify that motion pictures entered as Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language meet the minimum requirement for non-English language dialogue. Failure to provide a requested script in a timely manner will result in the entry being rejected.

b. For purposes of determining whether the dialogue of a motion picture is more than 50% English or non-English, dialects, pidgins and other local usages of English shall be considered English. The use of subtitles to make such dialects, pidgins, and local usages of English understandable to a broad range of English speakers does not affect the classification of such dialogue as English. The decision of the Golden Globe eligibility committee on the relative proportion of English and non-English language in a motion picture shall be final.

c. Motion pictures should be entered for consideration in the language(s) in which they were originally filmed. Non-English language-dubbed versions of motion pictures originally filmed in English are not eligible for the Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language award.

d. Motion pictures that qualify and are submitted for consideration for the Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language award may also be submitted for award consideration in all other motion picture... categories (including Best Motion Picture – Drama, Best Motion Picture – Musical or Comedy, and Best Motion Picture – Animated), provided that such motion pictures meet the eligibility criteria for those categories and are submitted for consideration in all applicable categories in the same qualifying year.

e. To qualify for the Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language award, a motion picture must be first released in its country of origin during the qualifying calendar year. The country of origin of a non-English language motion picture is the country of the entity credited for the production of the motion picture. Each motion picture may have multiple countries of origin, provided that each country of origin must have a role in the production of the motion picture (filming location, setting, residence of key personnel such as producers, actors, directors, etc.) in addition to providing financing for the motion picture.

f. Non-English language motion pictures may be submitted for the Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language award (and other award) consideration only once.

g. Non-English-language motion pictures that originate outside the United States do not need to be released in the United States to qualify for the Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language award.

h. A non-English-language motion picture also qualifies for the Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language award if censorship, war, civil unrest or other local conditions prevented it from being released in its country of origin, provided that it had a one-week release in another country during the qualifying period and meets the other criteria for eligibility.

i. There is no limit to the number of non-English language motion pictures that can be submitted from a specific country.

4. Performance (Acting) Awards:
   a. Voice only performances and other roles in which the actor’s face is not visible are not eligible in any performance category.
   b. Cameo appearances in which a person plays themselves are not eligible in any acting category. However, actors who play partially fictional characters and appear in a significant portion of a motion picture are eligible.
   c. Lead cast members in a motion picture must be the central characters who appear in a substantial portion of the motion picture and who drive the narrative of the motion picture.
d. Supporting cast members in a motion picture must appear in a minimum of 5% of the motion picture's total program time.

5. Director:
   a. The director(s) of an eligible motion picture entered for awards consideration shall be the individual(s) who have exercised all traditional theatrical feature film directorial functions in connection with original photography and have received an on-screen “Directed By” credit.

6. Screenplay:
   a. Writer(s) who have a “screenplay by” or “written by” credit for the motion picture are eligible for the Best Screenplay Award. Writers of source material and writers who contribute to the story but do not receive “screenplay by” or “written by” credit are not eligible.

7. Original Score:
   a. An original score is a substantial body of music that serves as dramatic underscoring for the motion picture. The score must be primarily original music written specifically for the motion picture and should not be diluted by the use of pre-existing music. The decision of the Golden Globe eligibility committee on the relative proportion of original music in a score shall be final. The work must be recorded for use in the motion picture prior to any other usage.
   b. Only the principal composer(s) responsible for the conception and execution of the work as a whole and who receives principal credit for the score in the motion picture will be eligible for the Best Original Score Award.

8. Original Song:
   a. Words and music, both of which are original and written specifically for the motion picture. Songs which contain words or music from prior songs (i.e., “sampling”) may be eligible if the Golden Globe eligibility committee determines that the copied portions of prior songs do not alter the overall originality of the song.
   b. Qualifying songs from a motion picture may be submitted at the discretion of the submitter.
   c. The Best Original Song Award is given to the accredited songwriter(s) (“written by,” “words” or “music” credits) for the winning song.

d. Qualifying songs written specifically for the motion picture may be released separately (e.g., as part of the movie soundtrack) prior to the release of the motion picture.

b. The award for Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language is given to the accredited director(s) of the motion picture.
c. The award for Best Motion Picture – Animated is given to the accredited director(s) and the individual producer(s) accredited by the Producers Guild of America for that motion picture.
d. The production entities accredited for the Best Motion Picture in each category may be eligible to receive a Golden Globe statuette for display purposes only.

10. Documentaries:
a. Documentaries (i.e., non-fiction motion pictures intended to document reality in a factual manner, primarily for instruction, education or maintaining a historical record) are not eligible for any of the motion picture award categories, including the Best Motion Picture categories.
b. Productions of stage plays, operas, concerts, and other live events recorded at a theater or other similar venue (i.e., not adapted for production as a motion picture or television program) are considered documentaries of the stage play, opera, concert, or other live event and, therefore, are not eligible for consideration as motion pictures.
c. Live-action or animated documentaries and docudramas (regardless of the language) with over 25\% of documentary footage are considered documentaries and, therefore, are not eligible for consideration as motion pictures.
d. Documentaries are eligible for the Cinematic and Box Office Achievement Award if the production meets the Cinematic and Box Office Achievement Award criteria set forth in these rules.
11. Anthology Motion Pictures:
   a. Anthology motion pictures in which multiple separate and distinct stories are told in separate segments are eligible for the Best Motion Picture – Drama, Best Motion Picture – Musical or Comedy, and Best Motion Picture – Non-English Language awards if all of the segments (i) are based on a common subject or theme, (ii) are released and screened for uninterrupted viewing as a single feature-length motion picture, and (iii) otherwise meet the eligibility requirements for each of those awards.
   b. Directors, screenwriters, composers, and lead actors associated with anthology motion pictures are eligible for the applicable Best Director, Best Screenplay, Best Score and Best Actor awards only if those individuals contributed to segments that comprise at least 50% of the running time of the motion picture.

1. Eligible television programs include series, limited-series and motion pictures originally released by broadcast, basic and premium cable, streaming, pay-per-view cable, premium cable and other forms of digital delivery but do not include motion pictures originally released on a pay-per-view cable or pay-per-view digital delivery of motion pictures. To be eligible for Golden Globe awards, television programs must be released on a recognized media platform (individual social media accounts do not qualify).

2. 3. Motion pictures should be entered in either the motion picture or the television award categories (but not both) based on their original release format. Motion pictures released in theaters or on pay-per-view in the United States at the same time as or before they are aired on a television format in the United States are eligible only for motion picture awards. 9. Documentaries are not eligible for any of the television award categories, including the series, limited series or motion picture made for television and the acting categories. Productions of stage plays, operas, concerts, and other live events recorded on a theatrical stage or other similar venue (i.e., not adapted for production as a motion picture or television program) are considered documentaries of the play, opera, concert, or other live event and are not eligible for any television awards, except for the Best Performance in Stand-Up Comedy on Television.

11. Publicists, studios, and others responsible for proposing or supporting a motion picture, television program, or Cinematic and Box Office Achievement film for the Golden Globe awards may not contact any individual Golden Globe voter other than the Golden Globe eligibility committee to discuss the appropriate classification of any entry. Requests to change entries after the date will be honored only to correct inadvertent omissions and clerical errors, and only to the extent feasible.

12. The studio or publicist submitting a motion picture or television program initially selects the award categories for which it is entered (e.g., male actor vs. female actor, drama vs. musical/comedy or lead vs. supporting). When the awards entry period is completed, the Golden Globe eligibility committee reviews the draft eligibility list for entry errors and omissions and to spot potential misclassification issues. The Golden Globe eligibility committee will attempt to correct such entry errors and omissions but cannot be responsible for correcting all entry errors and omissions made by the individual initially entering the motion picture or television program for award consideration. Those committee members may contact the studio or publicist submitting a motion picture or television program to discuss those issues and to resolve them informally. The studio or publicist submitting the motion picture or television program also may be asked to submit materials in support of any classifications that the eligibility committee believes should be submitted at the eligibility list meeting for discussion. If the committee believes that a motion picture or television program may have been misclassified as either a drama or a comedy, the committee will ask the director(s) of the motion picture or television program to submit a letter justifying the initial classification as drama or comedy for review.

13. The Golden Globe eligibility committee then meets with the Golden Globe review committee to discuss those issues and to review all entries in the draft eligibility list. These committees, voting by written ballot, may change any award entry by a vote of two-thirds or more of the committees’ members voting. Only members of these committees who have seen the motion picture or television program in question will be eligible to vote on appropriate award categories for that motion picture or television program, and each committee member must certify in writing that they have seen each motion picture or television program on which they vote.

14. A studio or publicist may request a determination, as outlined by the Golden Globe Awards Timetable each year, of the appropriate award categories for a motion picture or television program. The Golden Globe eligibility committee shall make such determinations by written ballot by a majority of its members voting. Only committee members who have seen a motion picture or television program in question will be eligible to vote on appropriate award categories for that motion picture or television program and each committee member must certify in writing that they have seen each motion picture or television program on which they vote. If a quorum of the committee members voting has not yet seen the motion picture or television program in question, the committee may defer the decision to the regular eligibility list meeting in the fall.

3. The nominees in each category will be the six (or eight) selections in each category that receive the greatest number of votes on the nomination ballots. In order to break ties, each Golden Globe voter should rank their six (or eight) choices in each category of the nominations ballot, by indicating their 1st choice (worth six or eight points), 2nd choice (worth five or seven points), etc. The accounting firm will use the points assigned in the nomination rankings only in the event of ties. The nominees in each award category will be announced in alphabetical order at the nominations press conference.

4. Nominated motion pictures and television programs and nominees for other awards shall comply promptly with requests to submit approved still photography, key art and video clips for use during the Golden Globe award show.
Final Vote:

1. Once the nominations have been announced, a final ballot, listing the nominees in each award category in alphabetical order, is mailed to all eligible Golden Globe voters, requesting that each of them votes for one nominee in each category and return the completed ballot directly to the accounting firm. In the case of a tie in any category, the winner will be the one of the tied nominees on the final ballot that had the most votes on the nomination ballot. In the unlikely event that after considering the nomination ballots there is still a tie in any category, two winners will be announced for that category.

2. During the period from the announcement of the nominations until the deadline for the final Golden Globe ballots to be submitted, Golden Globe voters should not be invited to and must not attend events (including parties, receptions, lunches and dinners and similar events) at which Golden Globe award nominees are present. Voters may continue to attend screenings and press conferences or official events available to comparable members of the media at which nominees are present but may not solicit other individual press opportunities with nominees during this period.

Results and Announcement:

1. The final results are known only by the accounting firm and are kept secret until the announcement at the Golden Globe Awards ceremony.
